Correspondent Tells How Whole Companies Are Driven Out by Floods.

TRANSPORT OF SUPPLIES IS TERRIFIC TO THE MEN!

Soldiers Grow Careless of Enemy's Fire-Willow Trees Deceive in the Dark-Star Rockets.

nce of the Associated Press. LONDON, December 20 .- The following account of life at the front is from a correspondent who volunteered for service at the beginning of the war and has since been promoted to the rank of officer:

"During the latter part of November the army in the trenches was well-nigh perishing with cold; since early December it has been the victim of persistent

'Night after night, whole companies are flooded out of their trenches, while a rearrangement of the forces has made it impossible to give the men their former weekly three days of rest in the villages behind the lines. All the advanced forces will remain in their trenches now for eighteen days; then trenches now for eighteen days; then they hope to have a brief relief.

"It is difficult to give an idea of what rain means in the trenches. The lines, under frosty conditions, seem such an orderly, permanent and townlike series of cubbyholes that when they all start to melt away and cave in under the influence of thaw and rain it is as if one were trying to travel through a pitch-dark London in ruins."

Buried in Mass of Earth.

Officers who were glorying in fine new dugouts, equipped with all the trench comforts, suddenly found themselves buried in a mass of collapsed earth of the consistency and quality of "The latest gossip here is that the In-"The latest gossip here is that the Indian division and the Germans were so close to each other a day or two ago that they used the same parapet for their trenches and took turns at firing through their mutual loopholes. That, of course, is a little exaggerated, but serves to illustrate the manner in which the two armies keep continually getting closer and closer. Hand grenades and homemade bombs, fashioned out of biscuit tins, can be used advantageously at many points. advantageously at many points.

Chance for Sharpshooters.

Generally, however, the front trenches are about 200 yards apart in this section. That gives the sharpshooters plenty of chance to get in their fine work, and it is dangerous to push one's head above a trench even sight a rifle. Many of the sharpshooters are using periscopes much like those of the submarine, and with these they can sight and shoot accurately without coming anywhere near the top of the trench. The opposing sharpshooters, of course, delight in efforts to hit the tube of the periscope and frequently succeed.

"Since the rains and floods came the communication trenches have largely cozed away. Some of them are like fivers; others are knee deep with pasty mud of exactly the same consistency of bakers' dough. A regiment which passed through one such trench a day or two ago left three men behind and had to send a relief party back to dig them out.

"Under such circumstances the labor of bringing up ammunition and rations from the rear is terrific, and the men assigned to this labor reach their destination in a state of utter fatigue; nevertheless, they have to take their turn at sentry duty later in the night.

Miss No Chance to Shoot. their fine work, and it is dangerous to Miss No Chance to Shoot.

"The enemy is very businesslike and misses no chance to shoot any man the exposes himself. Today, for ince, an English soldier was up in a willow tree cutting withes. A shot passed him and he sportively signaled 'A miss; left.' A second shot came and he signaled 'A miss; right.' The enemy rofited by his advice and the third shot passed straight through his head. "There are the strictest orders against men exposing themselves; but some of the careless ones are surprisingly disregardful of their safety. Yesterday a private who was dragging a sack of coal walked slowly along the top of a communicating trench for a considerable distance in full view of the enemy, merely because the bottom of the trench was muddy, and traveling down there in safety would have been of the trench was muddy, and traveling down there in safety would have been so much more laborious than on the firm soil above. A hall of bullets missed him, but he even stopped to light his pipe behind an eighteen-inch willow before he deliberately climbed back down into the trench with his load.

Tired of Trees and Stumps.

"The whole army is very tired of willow trees and poplars. It would be a relief to know that we would never a relief to know that we would never have to see them again. Willow stumps are particularly annoying because in the dark they look exactly like a crouching soldier, with perhaps a stray limb resembling a leveled gun. "I was out scouting two nights ago and went farther ahead than I had intended. I had no rifle with me. About forty yards from the enemy's trench I suddenly saw what I thought was a German crouching down with leveled gun. My heart stopped and I hastly signaled for the rifle of a man behind me, only to find it not loaded. Then I looked straight again and found the German was only a willow stump.

Drops Down by Corpse.

"On my way back, crawling cautiously through a turnip field—one must move cautiously, for these turnips crackle most alarmingly under footrockets, which make the neighborhood light as day for a mile around. I dropped down. To my horror, I dis-covered that my face was close along-gide a German corpse, that had lain there since their last unsuccessful in-there since their last unsuccessful infantry attack six weeks ago. Another and another rocket went up, and it is many minutes before I could get away from that grisly object. I brought back his helinet and rife as souvenirs.

"There is a great supply of news in the trenches, but much of it, I regret to say, is unreliable. Today, for instance, we heard of a great naval victory for the English, a great Galician sictory for the Russians, and for the fwentieth time that the kaiser is sick unto death."

Peruvian Cabinet Members Resign.

LIMA, Peru, January 1.-Further cabnet resignations, due to the unsettled political conditions, were announced Thursday. Fernando Fuchs, minister of the interior, and Col. Abril, minister of war, were the latest members to lay down their portfolios. Col. Abril had held office for only about two
